The controller appears to be of great quality material, but our disappointment was with the use of the product. You are able to record many scenes, but the only way to switch between the scenes WHILE having a timed fade is to set it on Automatic or Music Mode. It does not allow you to MANUALLY FADE through the scenes. IF you want to manually control the scenes you recorded it instantly switches to the next scene. Of course this feature is an essential one to manually doing lights in a concert where you know your scenes but many times you want slower fades between each one. We found ourselves not able to use all our lights to their full capacity due to this feature missing. That being said, the controller does things well and is built well, just know you are getting what you pay for. <http://angkorphotographyguide.com/userfiles/canon-s750-manual.xml>

It is one of the cheaper controllers, and the features are quite limited. More limited than we expected. Great if you want to use the automatic or music mode. Send report Total features handling quality Solid DMX terminal Mace Sounds, 28.07.2020 Works as intended, for a cheap first DMX terminal it is of great quality. Allows for programming of scenes and chases; not easy at first but once theyre worked out it works perfectly fine. Construction is solid, its heavy so have no worries about damaging it. Send report Total features handling quality More than enough. JessicaF, 10.06.2015 We bought this for a number of reasons, mostly that it accepts audioin, for accurately synchronising our lights with the music being played. However, once we started using this lighting controller, we found that the other included features are incredibly valuable and now we couldnt live without them. The scene programming and selection is incredibly intuitive one could program a light show in a number of minutes. Couple that with Manual, Auto and Music modes, and the workflow becomes very fast. The chases are very good too, with more memory locations than I ever would have expected. Send report Total features handling quality An essential addition to a small lighting array 07.02.2015 As a total novice to lighting when first approaching the problem of what to buy for our venue, it was glowing testimonials from friends in the business that brought the Stairville to our attention and rightly so. With a huge variety of possibilities and numerous wellthoughtout features, it has proven an essential bit of kit for us. Crucial and flexible when creating an atmosphere for all varieties of musical styles and clubnights. It also has the added benefit of being a familiar face for visiting technicians, making their work in the venue far more straightforward. The units built is hardy and not unattractive. The sockets are well made.<http://fredgillen.com/userfiles/canon-s600-repair-manual.xml>

The control area is well designed and numerous nice little touches including the Xboxesque swivel stick made it one of our best and most consistently reliable purchases. Highly recommended for anyone with a small venue and lighting array who still wants a certain level of versatility. The tiniest criticism would be that, for those of us looking to mount it on a wall, it lacks any predrilled fixture holes. But that is a small gripe with an otherwise excellent acquisition.
