findings supported by relevant quotes from the owners. I mention this only because we have not encountered a machine with a pattern of positive comments like we've found for the Toastmaster TBR15 Breadmaker. While there are some isolated complaints they seem to be related to fundamental mistakes in isolation related to customer mistakes or misunderstandings driven by selection of the wrong settings, ingredients or inexperience with bread machines. Here's an example. "Does this machine make butter" No. It is a bread machine. It's still going strong." Settings The Toastmaster TBR15 has 8 preprogrammed settings including basic, fast bake, French, whole wheat, sweet, quick bread, dough, and bake only plus 3 crust settings ranging from light to medium to dark. It does not have a dedicated gluten free setting. It also has a delayed setting that allows you to delay any cycle up to 13 hours. Our standard caution with any delayed cycle setting is to avoid adding dairy products like milk, butter or eggs if you are using a delayed setting. "It's lasted me, so far, for 7 years. I've had no problems with this brand." Horizontal Bread Pan A unique feature of the Toastmaster TBR15 is its horizontal bread pan that bakes both one and one and a half pound loaves.
This horizontal configuration is usually only found on more expensive bread machines. The pan is described as nonstick. This usually is Teflon or a Teflon derivative but the specific coating is not identified. "I use this all the time and it works very well." One Kneading Paddle or Two. Most bread machines with a horizontal loaf configuration feature two kneading paddles.

<https://skazkina.com/ru/dgs-3324sr-manual>

Toastmaster makes no mention of the number of paddles which leads me to believe there is only one paddle. Manufacturers who have two paddle combinations often tout this feature and there is no apparent mention of the number of kneading paddles in the Toastmaster TBR15. There were some isolated comments from some owners about efficient mixing but I've seen these comments even with machines with a vertical loaf configuration. "After the first mixing, I often have to scrape some flour off the sides of the tray with a spoon." "The mixing phase requires help. This really helps to monitor progress on a loaf so you don't have to lift the lid, but there was one curious comment about the lid actually melting and presented in all capital letters. "THE CLEAR SEETHRU TOP WARPED" Given that this was an isolated comment I suspect the owner either had a defective machine or had somehow used an improper setting, but it's noted here as a caution due to the fact that the top and the window is in fact mostly plastic. LCD Panel The Toastmaster TBR15 has an LCD control panel that is easy to use. It's very light at 9.6 pounds and curiously there are no complaints about the machine vibrating or walking across counters. I am totally in love with my machine and can't wait to get another bread machine to enjoy. I have made several recipes that came with the instruction book and only had one that did not rise correct but still tasted fine. My husband loves eating everything that has been made from this machine.

The machine itself is a little noisy and I babysit it to add needed flour or water and scrape the sides but I am totally hooked and have made meal planning fun. Reply Julia Simpson July 7, 2018 at 8:37 pm Overall Rating 70 I am looking for the instructions to have the bread be made in the morning. Can't find the instructions to the machine. I followed directions exactly. Made other bread and mostly ok Reply Jeremy Meeks December 19, 2017 at 1:52 am I've used this particular bread machine since, well, I can't remember. I inherited it from my parents when I moved out of the house around 2013. I use it usually during the holidays and occasionally throughout the year, but it has rarely failed. Getting it to produce the perfect dough ball usually consists of adding a teaspoon of water or flour before the beep until it either becomes nicely formed or unsticks from the sides not the usual method of scooping the sides. If a loaf has overproofed it is usually due to a few factors. You cannot omit the salt, as it retards the rise to some degree, and I have on occasion added a tad more salt to almost all the recipes as I notice it tends to produce a nicer top not one that is deflated looking from overproofing. It has yet to overflow from pan though.
