Du 800 Spectrophotometer Manual

Schedule a free consultation with our technical consultants today! This model has various applications in life sciences, the academe, biotechnology and the pharmaceutical industry. Instrument control, data handling and reduction for the Beckman DU 800 are managed through a computer. This type of data management is suitable for quantitative and qualitative analyses. This model is also equipped with features that increase performance including immediate access to system functions and the continuous display of both status and method parameters. The DU 800 source scheduler is responsible for automatically switching the UV and visible lamps at specified times. The builtin Performance Validation Scheduler is capable of programmed system warmups and specified testing procedures at any given time. The cell matching feature of this spectrophotometer enables minor difference adjustments when dealing with multiple cells. The DU 800 carries out quick reading and scanning procedures without having to open other applications. Ramsey, MN 55303 USA. Similar items may be available. Turn on the device, rear upper left side, toggle switch. Beckman Coulter, Inc. The DU spectrophotometer or Beckman DU, introduced in, was the first commercially viable scientific instrument for measuring the amount of ultraviolet light absorbed by a substance.
