Unlike readymade equipment manufacturers, Tubar Eureka provides long term solutions that will perform at top capacity for years to come.

This means you get a longterm return on your investment, a more efficient manufacturing process, and excellent equipment that does far more than stock ever could. Tubar has the expertise and knowledge to custom engineer dumpers, bulk bag systems, conveyors and related equipment to fit the most demanding of environments and hard to fit situations. Tubar's expertise in designing and building highly reliable and longlived equipment is demonstrated by the multitude of Tubar equipment still in service today after decades of service in high stress environments. We are also proud to be Quality ISO 9001 Certified. We are dedicated to improving and expanding our product lines through technological innovation, creativity, product development, and strong relationships with our distributors. It was in 2012 that these two operations joined their rich history and expertise together to create the Tubar Eureka of today. The best features of heritage brands with advanced technologies make dependability, efficient operation and long service life an expected result.The remaining railcars in the string are held in place with a holding device. As the dumper barrel rotates on the centreline axis of the railcar couplers, car clamps securely hold the railcar in place during rotation. The material is unloaded into the hopper and is transported via a conveyor located under the hopper. The barrel rotates to its original position as the car clamps are raised. The next railcars in the train are indexed into position, and the cycle repeats. With absolutely no coding knowledge, anyone can create a stunning website using Jimdos draganddrop interface.
